Film posters, on your wallet

Photo: Mihir

The laboratory is an ideal place for visual art practitioners and theorists, an art project within a museum for dissemination of knowledge and information. The two film posters appear in close proximity to each other on a leather wallet for men available on a popular website Indian Hippo (www.hippo.in).

In trying to salvage the nearly extinct art form of film posters, Mihir's Mihira Achard (29) has employed poster artists of yore to recreate the magic of old and new films on leather wallets.

"The real challenge was to get them to adapt their art on a medium that is almost as precious as a painting on canvas. There aren't many takers for the art on the original canvas any more," says Achard, who believes he perhaps has the only cinema that still uses hand-painted film posters.

We meet him first, however, as a member of the team that books the film posters for the race being chaired inside his studio.

Everything points to just one direction: Harrow is the stuff that gets made.
